These are the results of the forty restaurant and nightlife guides that Zagat produce yearly, covering cities such as London, Paris, New York, Tokyo and San Francisco to name but a few. To guide the readers to the best watering holes to suit their tastes, moods and budgets, there are a number of category lists, for example, Most Popular, Top Ratings and Best Buys. On the assumption that most people want a quick fix on the places at which they are considering socialising, there are also handy and concise indexes. These guides spotlight both centuries old traditional pubs and trendy, minimalist lounges, sumptuous restaurants and clubs. The diversity of venues means that goths, pre-clubbers, lads, families, hen and stag nights and tourists can all have the best of times.

A Romance of Regent Street

This self-help book is the first book in a 5-part "A Transformational Way" series. It will help to heighten your consciousness, spirituality and enlightenment. It sets the tone for you to become more awakened, mindful and happy. Life Coach & Public Speaker Mark Lynn shares transformational techniques and processes for self-improvement, self-awareness and self-fulfillment. He explores fundamental Eastern philosophies as grounds for a spiritual awakening. Using his experiences, influences, education (MBA), and a deep sense of inquiry into the unknown, this book will fully support the reader's consciousness and inspirational development, both personal and professional.

"Over the past two decades, Brazilian artist Ernesto Neto has developed a dynamic sculptural practice, creating complex multi-sensory environments that transform viewers' experiences of the spaces they move through. This lavishly illustrated career survey, with essays by Cliff Lauson, Moacir dos Anjos, Philip Ursprung and an interview with the artist by Ralph Rugoff, includes photographs of Neto's dramatic exhibition The edges of the world at London's Hayward Gallery."--Back cover.

2020 Weekly Planner

This book attacks the often implicit and damaging assumption that 'everyone' is online and that 'everyone' is using online resources within the specified parameters of employers, government and national laws. This book summons a critical Web Studies, asking not only who is using particular applications, but also how and why. This remedial work is required. The concept and label of 'Web 2.0' is part of a wide-ranging suite of assumptions that offer simple answers to difficult questions. The term captures a desire for online collaboration and the sharing of information, performed most visibly through blogs, podcasts and wikis. Other 'products' that capture the Web 2.0 ideology include Google Maps, Facebook, MySpace and Flickr. Within this framework, websites no longer hold information but become a platform to connect applications with users. The business applications have gained the most attention - particularly content syndication - but there are also 'political' initiatives overlaying this project including open communication, the sharing of data and the deep linking of web architecture. Development of innovative concepts and models to manage the digital divide. Evocative studies of the digitally excluded and downloading communities. Attention to digital literacy and online education.

They say it's not the destination that matters, but the journey. Whoever "they" are, got it right. My Life in the 50 States is a collection of stories, observations, and experiences - some funny, some poignant, some thought provoking, all interesting - from coach and globetrotter, Jodi Greve. What started with an on-board conversation and a map became a mission as Greve set a goal of visiting all 50 states. From a road trip to North Carolina as a college freshman to a very cool visit to Michigan in November of 2017, Greve chronicles her travels over the years, sharing with us her observations about the people she met, the places she visited, the lessons she learned, and the wisdom she picked up along the way. From discovering her ethnicity in Maine to flying high over Hawaii to surviving heartbreaking loss in the midst of a championship season, Greve gives us a personal and moving look into her journey that may just inspire you to set off on one of your own. Intelligent, funny, and touching, My Life in the 50 States is sure to encourage and entertain.

Paul Hedley Jones presents a coherent reading of 1 Kings 13 that is attentive to literary, historical and theological concerns. Beginning with a summary and evaluation of Karl Barth's overtly theological exposition of the chapter - as set out in his Church Dogmatics - Jones explores how this analysis was received and critiqued by Barth's academic peers, who focused on very different questions, priorities and methods. By highlighting substantive material in the text for further investigation, Jones sheds light on a range of hermeneutical issues that support exegetical work unseen, and additionally provides a wider scope of opinion into the conversation by reviewing the work of other scholars whose methods and priorities also diverge from those of Barth and his contemporaries. After evaluating four additional in-depth readings of 1 Kings 13, Jones presents a more theoretical discussion about perceived dichotomies in biblical studies that tend to surface regularly in methodological debates. This volume culminates with Jones' original exposition of the chapter, which offers an interpretation that reads 1 Kings 13 as a narrative analogy, where the figure of Josiah functions as a hermeneutical key to understanding the dynamics of the story.

Grounded Practical Theory: Investigating Communication Problems provides readers with an introduction to grounded practical theory (GPT), a framework for doing research about the problems people encounter when they engage in particular communicative practices, techniques for managing those problems, and normative ideas for how to communicate wisely in situations that involve tensions and dilemmas. Readers learn about the philosophy behind GPT and how its application can strengthen and improve existing communication practices. They review a detailed road map and practical examples for conducting GPT research, including how to analyze discourse. They also learn how past researchers have creatively adapted GPT to study and reconstruct a variety of communicative practices. The text compares GPT with other qualitative approaches and offers guidance for how to choose among different methods. The book concludes with considerations of how GPT may be used in the future. Grounded Practical Theory is an ideal book for graduate-level courses in qualitative methods or communication theory and an excellent resource for practicing communication scholars and researchers. Robert T. Craig (Ph.D., Michigan State University) is Professor Emeritus of Communication at the University of Colorado Boulder. He is a Distinguished Scholar of the National Communication Association and a fellow and past president of the International Communication Association. He writes about communication theory and philosophy, discourse, and argumentation. Karen Tracy (Ph.D., University of Wisconsin) is Professor Emeritus of Communication at the University of Colorado Boulder. She is a Distinguished Scholar of the National Communication Association and a fellow in the International Communication Association. She is the author of Challenges of Ordinary Democracy: A Case Study in Deliberation and Everyday Talk: Building and Reflecting Identities.

I Am Cut Viciously is a reproduction of an original artist book by Australia's greatest Outsider Artist Anthony Mannix. This book was created in 1988 and aquired by The Museum of Everything in London in 2016. This publication aims to bring Mannix's fragile artist books to a wider audience. To this original artist book has been added poetic text from his many other works. This first edition print run will be limited to 50 copies. Each book will be hand numbered and each will have a hand drawn dust jacket created by Anthony Mannix himself. Mannix's creative output spans thirty-five years and includes writings, drawings, paintings, sculptures, artist books and sound recordings. He has exhibited his work in Australia, Europe and the U.S.A. and is the co-founder of the Australian Collection of Outsider Art. Mannix's work centres on the documentation and investigation of his experiences of 'madness' and, what is for him, madness' implicit creativity. Mannix's work derives much of its emotional intensity from his detailed depiction of a world-view that is by turns visionary, philosophical and erotic.

Whenever Bakhtin, in his final decade, was queried about writing his memoirs, he shrugged it off. Unlike many of his Symbolist generation, Bakhtin was not fascinated by his own self-image. This reticence to tell his own story was the point of access for Viktor Duvakin, Mayakovsky scholar, fellow academic, and head of an oral history project, who in 1973 taped six interviews with Bakhtin over twelve hours. They remain our primary source of Bakhtin's personal views: on formative moments in his education and exile, his reaction to the Revolution, his impressions of political, intellectual, and theatrical figures during the first two decades of the twentieth century, and his non-conformist opinions on Russian and Soviet poets and musicians. Bakhtin's passion for poetic language and his insights into music also come as a surprise to readers of his essays on the novel. One remarkable thread running through the conversations is Bakhtin's love of poetry, masses of which he knew by heart in several languages. Mikhail Bakhtin: The Duvakin Interviews, 1973, translated and annotated here from the complete transcript of the tapes, offers a fuller, more flexible image of Bakhtin than we could have imagined beneath his now famous texts. Published by Bucknell University Press. Distributed worldwide by Rutgers University Press.

Celtic legend Tommy McNally was a loveable rogue, a firm favourite with fans and an acknowledged football genius. Brilliant with the ball at his feet and with a natural flair few could match, it was his flaws off the pitch that would cut short one of football's most dazzling careers. When Tommy McNally joined Celtic as a 19-year-old, he was immediately hailed as the new 'boy wonder'. He was an instant success and lit up Celtic Park for a few unforgettable seasons. He also went on to play for the national side and was Scotland's number one sports personality in the 1920s. Until it all started to go wrong. Tommy McNally - Celtic's Bad Bhoys? charts the remarkable rise and fall of football's Peter Pan, the one-time darling of the Celtic Park terraces whose appetite for partying and mischief-making would lead eventually to his downfall. But, despite his fall from grace, the name of Tommy McNally will remain forever in the pantheon of Celtic greats. After all, none other than Celtic's legendary manager Willie Maley called Tommy McNally 'the greatest Celt of them all.'

Gardens are immobile, literally rooted in the earth, but they are also shaped by migration and by the transnational movement of ideas, practices, plants, and seeds. In Paradise Transplanted, Pierrette Hondagneu-Sotelo reveals how successive conquests and diverse migrations have made Southern California gardens, and in turn how gardens influence social inequality, work, leisure, status, and our experiences of nature and community. Drawing on historical archival research, ethnography, and over one hundred interviews with a wide range of people including suburban homeowners, paid Mexican immigrant gardeners, professionals at the most elite botanical garden in the West, and immigrant community gardeners in the poorest neighborhoods of inner-city Los Angeles, this book offers insights into the ways that diverse global migrations and garden landscapes shape our social world.
